DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-39 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gunatillake et al.

The reference discloses processes for the production of poly(alkylene oxide) which includes providing a polyhydroxy compound or compounds and an acid resin catalyst or a salt thereof that has been converted to the acid form; and reacting said polyhydroxy compound or compounds in the presence of said acid resin catalyst at a temperature and under conditions to allow polymerization (see Abstract and at col. 2, line 4 et seq.).

Note that at least in Example 9 at col. 6, the reference discloses a mixture of two diols such as 1,3-propanediol and a decanediol under conditions to form a poly(trimethylene decane ether) glycol.

The disclosure of the reference differs from the instant claims in that it does not disclose the condensation product of 1,3-propanediol and ethylene glycol reactants nor the steps of the continuous, semi-continuous and batch processes to form the product.

However, at least one Example discloses the condensation product of 1,3-propanediol and a decane diol to form the copolymer, as stated above. Further, the reference does disclose the polyhydroxy compounds including alkanediols having from 2 to 20 carbon atoms (see col. 3, lines 25-30) and the use of a very broad teachings of steps under conditions to form the products.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to select ethylene glycol (C2) to replace said decane diol (C10) and to select the steps of the processes from the reference within the limitation of the instant claims to form the claimed product, a poly(trimethylene ethylene ether) diol, since they have been shown to be effective in a similar system and thus would have been expected to provide adequate results. There is no showing of unexpected results derived from said selection.
